The Focus of the Sunday School Movement

The Heartbeat of the Sunday School Movement

The focus is for this group to not only gain a head knowledge of the Bible, but to see lives transformed.

The Sunday School movement has not been built by ministers, but by men and women committed to following God's call to teach children.

The only learning that changes conduct significantly is learning that is self-discovered. Never tell anyone anything he can discover for himself.

A group of people who gather together, to learn from the Bible, in the context of a fun and caring fellowship of people.
